PROHIBITION A DOMINATING ISSUE IN U. S.

UNITED PRESS SURVEY SHOWS FACTS IN CASE

100 BILLS HAVE BEEN INTRODUCED IN CONGRESS ON THE SUBJECT

12 STATES HAVE PROHIBITION LEGISLATION INTRODUCED, 11 POLLS TAKEN

By MAX BUCKINGHAM (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, March 19.—Prohibition has become a dominating issue in the nation within the past few months, a United Press survey disclosed today. Recent developments disclose that about 100 bills have been introduced on the subject in congress; 12 states have prohibition legislation either introduced or about to be introduced; 11 recent polls have been taken inquiring prohibition sentiment and some still are under way; hearings have been started on several national measures; both wet and dry forces are tightening their lines for concerted drives either towards legislation or towards election of congressmen or state officials this fall.

Where there has been "wet" trends in polls, the voters' disposition has leaned toward repeal rather than modification of the dry law. These polls, however, are considered generally as inconclusive to date. On the other side is a recent poll by the Pathfinder magazine in Washington which revealed a preponderant enforcement sentiment in dry rural communities. Chairman Wickensham of the Hoover law enforcement commission has said that 2.75 per cent beer would "not satisfy the robust appetite."

Main legislative activity is in the east, the United Press survey disclosed. New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island are the center of the most heated state fights. In some of the western and southern states there have been introduced—and passed in some cases—amendments making more stringent the state enforcement laws.

On the other hand, a vast number of western states reported that legislative activity on prohibition was at a standstill. In many of these latter the legislatures are adjourned until next year and various organizations are planning prohibition measures—both towards repeal and towards more strict enforcement—at that time. In Pennsylvania the Amendment Against the Prohibition Association is active particularly towards ascertaining sentiment of office holders seeking reelection. They have not announced their policy.

In such western states as Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Texas, Nebraska, Indiana, Utah, Montana, Missouri, Minnesota, etc., legislative activity is dormant. Wet leaders, however, forecast activity in many of the states in the coming legislative sessions.

Results of the United Press poll: Washington, D. C.—A bill is before the senate District of Columbia committee to tighten enforcement in the district; house has passed measure transferring enforcement agents from treasury to justice department which now is before senate; house judiciary committee reported favorably two bills to carry out law enforcement commission's recommendation for trial of petty cases before U. S. commissioners; no action on recommendation of law enforcement commission for unification of border patrol agencies under coast guard and increasing staffs of district attorneys; Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, has proposed investigation of prohibition enforcement; many modification bills have been introduced including a proposal for 2.75 per cent beer but there has been no action to date.

Illinois—Resolution adopted in the Chicago city council to forward to the Wickensham commission statistics showing increase in crime since advent of prohibition. Last legislature defeated proposal for state referendum.

Rhode Island—Legislature has passed and governor has signed bill providing for state wide referendum on question "Shall the 18th amendment be retained?"

Massachusetts—Legislative committee on legal affairs has reported adversely an initiative petition calling for repeal of the Massachusetts state enforcement act.

New York—Measures before both houses include the Brown-Jenks bill calling for state enforcement of prohibition; Post-Sheridan bill for manufacture, sale and distribution of beer under state supervision; bill of Sen. Weikowski for referendum on repeal of prohibition law; bill of Assemblyman Cuvillier for referendum to test whether Swiss or Canadian liquor systems are regarded as better than the eighteenth amendment.

California—Wets planning force initiative measure to modify the state Wright (dry) act at next election.

Michigan—Last legislature repealed "life for a pint" dry law. Dries succeeded in passing amendment to the liquor laws which carries a mandatory jail sentence of one to four years for conviction of sale.

Mississippi—Bill now in senate committee provides $50 to $100 fine for first conviction public drunkenness; $100 to $500 fine for second offense and up to five years' imprisonment for "habitual drunkenness."

Wisconsin—Last legislature repealed state dry act. Many municipalities have own enforcement program and Madison, state capital, voting on own enforcement act April 1. Anti-Saloon League attempting to elect dry congress to reinstate dry act. Jefferson Club, Milwaukee democratic organization, has plan to put the state in business of making and dispensing liquor.

South Carolina—At last legislature two provisions strengthening enforcement were defeated. A joint senate resolution provides an amendment to the state constitution requiring all legislators and state officers to swear they will purchase no contraband liquor. The bill awaits committee action.

Virginia—Legislature voted an increase in the annual appropriation for dry law enforcement from $70,000 to $80,000 for the next two years.

Alabama—Last session of legislature passed a bill making the transportation of five or more gallons of whiskey a felony.

Maryland—Last session of state assembly defeated a motion providing for a state enforcement act.

Literary Digest (first report)—Total of 291,588 votes cast from ten states including Illinois, New Jersey and New York, considered wet states, showed 80,739 favoring enforcement; 91,916 favoring modification; 118,934 favoring repeal. Kansas was the only state among the ten voting dry. Magazine says no conclusions can be drawn on the meager returns.

Yale University—Poll by Yale Daily News showed 84.6 per cent of the students voting with 2,113 favoring repeal of the 18th amendment and 426 favoring enforcement; 1,874 admitted drinking in college.

Poll among management of hotels with more than 50 rooms in New York state showed—118 in favor of legalizing sale of highly alcoholic beverages and 94 against; 202 in favor of sale of light wines and 11 against. A great majority voted against return of the saloon.

University of Pennsylvania—Poll by Daily Pennsylvanian (after first day) 71 voting in favor of prohibition and 116 against; 23 voting as favoring the existing prohibition laws and 135 voting against.

Poll by the Pathfinder among rural communities showed—59,953 favoring prohibition; 75,604 favoring government sale of light wines and beer; 56,502 favoring government sale of hard liquor; 15,441 favored return of saloon and 214,873 favored stricter enforcement of law.

Astoria, L. I. Republican Club—Adopted resolution calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment on the grounds prohibition should be a matter of state determination.

Delaware—Polls sent out by Pierre Du Pont showed 39,245 persons favoring repeal of state prohibition enforcement bill out of 45,640 responding to a questionnaire mailed to 106,450 persons.

Williams College—Eighty per cent of the student body voted on a prohibition poll which showed 58 per cent favoring government control; 17 per cent favored light wines and beers; 13 per cent favored strict enforcement of dry law; 11 per cent favored repeal of the 18th amendment.

Union League Club, New York City—1,324 members out of 1,800 members voted on poll showing 932 for repeal of the 18th amendment; 264 in favor of modification; 109 against repeal; 19 non-committal.

Michigan—Poll by attorney general among 83 prosecution attorneys of state showed 65 pleased with present prohibition statutes with their drastic jail provisions for conviction.

New York Young Republican Club—Reports said a poll now under way showed about a 10 to 1 sentiment in favor of repeal of the 18th amendment.

Springfield, Ill., March 19.—(U.P.)—Charges of collusion on the part of officers of the Modern Woodmen of America in increasing insurance rates of the society to certain members were made in a petition asking the state supreme court to reopen the case here.

The petition asks a rehearing of the court's decision last month wherein the rates were upheld though an earlier verdict of the court had held against the national officers.

Attached to the petition filed today was an affidavit by an "Edward Jenkins" who stated he received twenty dollars for signing a petition in justification of the increased rate.

KAYE DON TO TRY FOR RECORD TODAY

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 19.—(U.P.)—Kaye Don, British racing driver, who has encountered many difficulties in his attempts to set a new speed record for automobiles, was not discouraged today.

He planned to go out late this afternoon and make another effort to drive faster than 231.36 miles per hour, which he will have to do if he sets a record better than that of Major H. O. Segrave a year ago.

LORD BALFOUR, BRITISH STATESMAN, DIES IN ENGLAND

FOR 50 YEARS HE HAD BEEN A NOTABLE FIGURE IN BRITISH, INTERNATIONAL POLITICS

A BRILLIANT ACHIEVEMENT WAS WORK WITH BRITISH WAR MISSION IN 1917

Woking, England, March 19.—(U.P.)—Lord Balfour, British statesman, died at the residence of his brother, Fishers Hill House today, at the age of 81. On March 10, Lord Balfour suffered a sudden gastric chill, aggravating a previously dangerous condition, and sank steadily until the end shortly after 8 A. M. today.

For the past year he had been living in the secluded estate of the Right Honorable Gerald Balfour, his brother, about a mile from this city.

For 50 years, he had been a notable figure in British and international politics. One of the brilliant achievements of his career revolved around his visit to the United States in 1917, as head of the British war mission. Upon his return, in 1922, as a delegate to the Washington naval conference, he was received in America as an "old friend."

The bulletin announcing his death was issued at 9:30 A. M., signed by Dr. R. Thorne-Thorne, his personal physician. Lord Balfour died peacefully.

His health forced his retirement from political or public activity nearly a year ago. But he leaves behind him a record of half a century in British politics, in which he had a great share in the process of empire building through the reigns of three sovereigns—Queen Victoria, King Edward and the present King George.

Lord Balfour's brother, Gerald Balfour, succeeds to the title.

The last official act of the late statesman was in May, 1929, when he presided over the privy council at Craigwell House, Bognor, at which King George signed the decree dissolving the parliament.

Funeral services will be held at Whittingham, Scotland, Sunday, and a memorial service will be given at Westminster Abbey at the same time.

RUMORS OF A SPEED WAR ON RAIL LINES

FIGHT FOR BEST TIME IN TRANS-CONTINENTAL FIELD OF THE NORTHWEST

PRESIDENTS OF N. P., G. N., U. P. AND BURLINGTON IN CONFERENCE

St. Paul, March 19.—(U.P.)—Rumors of a trans-continental speed war between railroads serving the northwest and northern Pacific coast circulated today as the presidents of the four largest roads in the area met here.

The presidents were Ralph Budd, Great Northern; Charles Donnelly, Northern Pacific; Carl Gray, Union Pacific, and F. E. Williamson, Burlington.

All except Williamson, who arrived today, conferred in a private conference last night on the possibility of speeding up the trans-continental limited trains operating between Chicago and the Pacific northwest.

Recently the running time between the Twin Cities and Chicago was reduced to 9 hours and 50 minutes when the Northwestern's new Victory Special was inaugurated.

To meet the competition, the Burlington may reduce the running time of the trans-continental special trains by one hour. This would in effect shorten the time from Chicago to the coast by that hour.

Budd and Donnelly will confer with Williamson on a new proposed train schedule which would put the Burlington's reduction into effect on the cross-continent trains.

Budd, who returned from New York for the conferences, said the main issue concerned in the proposal for merging the two Northerns was for the divestment of the Burlington.

"The case has devolved into two main considerations," Budd said. "They are those of a legal and financial nature and those of operating principals. The financial, of course, includes the proposal to divorce the Burlington."

"I hope the whole thing may be worked out at an early date and some decision made."

DE RIVERA RITES ARE HELD TODAY

RULED SPAIN WITH RIGID HAND FOR MORE THAN SIX YEARS

By JOHN DE GANDT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Madrid, March 19.—Miguel Primo de Rivera, Marquis of Estella, who ruled Spain with a rigid hand for more than six years as dictator, was buried today while Madrid echoed with popular expressions in his honor.

A demonstration occurred as the cortege, en route through the streets to San Isidor cemetery, reached the Toledo bridge. The crowd closed in and prevented the progress of the procession. They rushed the guards, shouting "Long live Spain," "Long live Estella," "Deat hto the assassins of Estella!"

The crowd made a martyr of the dictator who, when forced to resign, went into voluntary exile in Paris and died.

Cavalry re-established order and the procession continued to the cemetery, where burial occurred at 2 P. M.

The streets of the city were lined with troops along the entire route. Cries of "Viva Estella" were repeatedly heard. Twelve airplanes flew overhead.

OUTSTANDING DARK HORSE OF TARIFF DEBATE

ANOTHER HEATED DEBATE EXPECTED ON PROPOSAL OF SEN. THOMAS, OKLAHOMA

WANTS TO PLACE TARIFF OF $1 A BARREL ON CRUDE OIL IMPORTED IN AMERICA

Washington, March 19.—(U.P.)—The senate today turned its attention to oil, the outstanding dark horse of the tariff debate.

Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, announced last night he would bring the subject of an oil duty before the body the first thing today, and another heated debate is anticipated on his proposal to place a tariff of $1 a barrels on crude oil imports and 50 per cent advalore mon imported oil products.

This proposal was defeated a month ago but is being brought up again on a motion to reconsider. Only six weeks ago the senate had never considered seriously any sort of duty on oil. Even proponents of an oil duty were so sure they had no chance of success they did not consider the matter seriously.

The arrivals in Washington at that time of a train load of independent operators from the southwest to stage a spectacular drive for the duty changed the outlook almost unbelievably, many high tariff men who have gained many votes in the last month, now hope to place oil on the dutiable list.

In the house the judiciary committee resumed its hearings on bills to repeal and modify the 18th amendment with a number of dry leaders, headed by Horace D. Taft, brother of the late chief justice, and Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, ready to continue testimony against the measures.

The drys expect to conclude their case within the next day or two but it is considered probable at least three more days will be required before wets can start their rebuttal testimony.

Charles A. Krickel, an official of the New York brokerage firm of Mlythe & Bonner, was to appear before the senate lobby committee today with books and records concerning a $36,100 fund paid to Claudius Huston, chairman of the republican national committee, by the Union Carbide Co.

The records were subpoenaed yesterday over the protests of Huston who is being questioned concerning his activities in connection with the Muscle Shoals bill here.

The house continued debate on the motor bus regulation bills while its banking committee continued hearings on branch and chain banking practices.

Washington, March 19.—The senate lobby committee has exceeded its authority and denied American citizens "the right of petition to the government" guaranteed by the constitution, Senator Thomas, democrat, of Oklahoma, charged in the senate today as he opened a new fight for a tariff duty on petroleum.

Thomas proposed a duty of $1 a barrel on crude petroleum and 50 per cent on refined oil. A similar amendment was defeated in the senate recently by a dozen votes.

Allege Plot to Obtain Morphine with Counterfeit Prescriptions

Superior, Wis., March 19.—(U.P.)—Federal and county authorities today were investigating an alleged plot to obtain morphine with counterfeit prescriptions after Mrs. Louise Ball, 55, a suspected addict, was arrested.

Louis Weinberg, a druggist, revealed the prescription source when he detected forgery in the signature of Dr. W. H. Schnell on a prescription presented to him by a messenger. Mrs. Schnell was said to have sent the forged paper to the drug store.

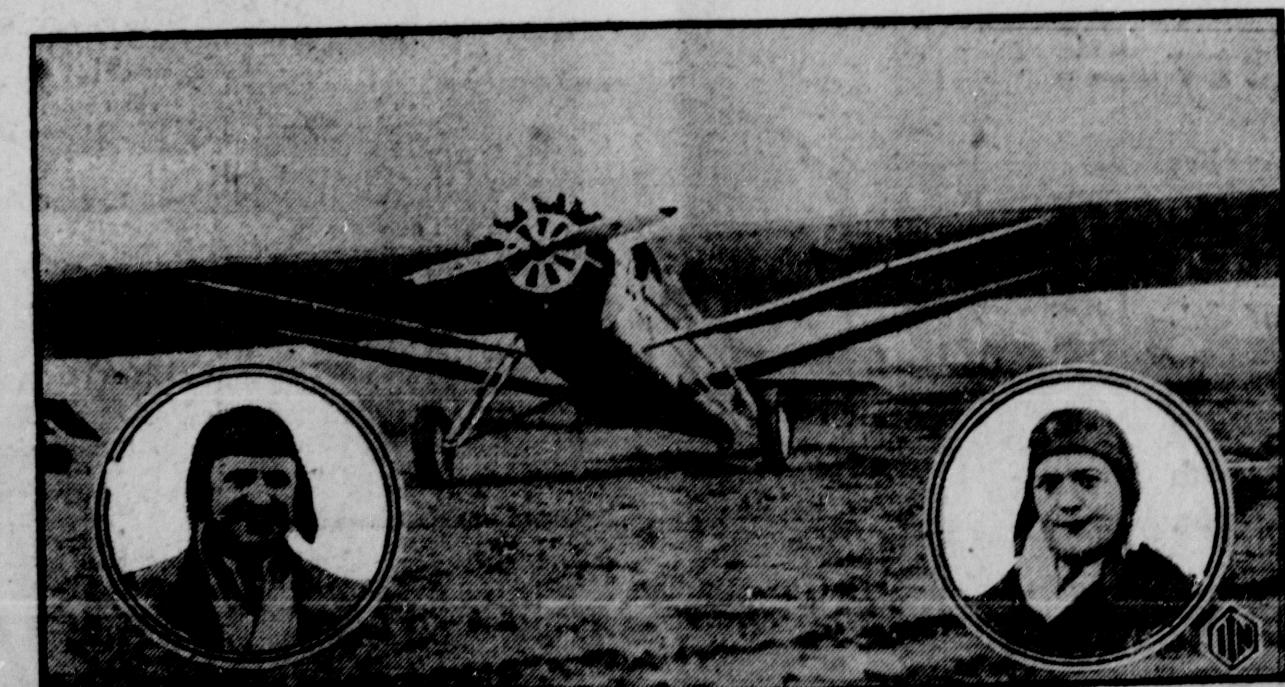

The prescription blank was believed to have been stolen from the physician's office and carried an order for 20 grains of morphine. It was made out for Henry Cline, 88.

MEXICAN BANDITS HOLD OIL OPERATOR CAPTIVE IN WILDS

San Angelo, Texas, March 19.—(U.P.)—Relatives of J. E. Brustow, 60-year-old oil operator who is held captive by Mexican bandits in the vicinity of Matatlan, Mexico, awaited word from the Mexican consul at El Paso today before deciding on their course of action.

A son, Gordon Obie Brustow, chartered a plane for a flight to aid his captive father but postponed his departure until additional news of his father had been received. The elder Brustow was reported exploring the country for oil when the bandits overtook him and made him prisoner.

Primed for Hop-Off to Buenos Aires

The "K of New Haven" as it appeared at Hartford, Conn., following its arrival from Detroit with Captain Herbert C. Partridge and Lieutenant-Commander George R. Pond, who plan to fly to Buenos Aires. Plans call for a return flight to Detroit, and thence to Cleveland, after which the proposed non-stop flight will be begun.

Reeve made a campaign on a communist platform.

William F. Scott, incumbent and labor-progressive indorsee, swept his opposition by receiving a majority vote for the city comptroller nomination.

KAYE DON TO TRY FOR RECORD TODAY

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 19.—(UP)—Kaye Don, British racing driver, who has encountered many difficulties in his attempts to set a new speed record for automobiles, was not discouraged today.

He planned to go out late this afternoon and make another effort to drive faster than 231.36 miles per hour, which he will have to do if he sets a record better than that of Major H. O. Segrave a year ago.

LORD BALFOUR,
BRITISH STATESMAN,
DIES IN ENGLANDFOR 50 YEARS HE HAD BEEN A NOTABLE FIGURE IN BRITISH,

WORK WITH BRITISH WAR
MISSION IN 1917

Woking, England, March 19.—(UP)—Lord Balfour, British statesman, died at the residence of his brother, Fishers Hill House today, at the age of 81. On March 10, Lord Balfour suffered a sudden gastric chill, aggravating a previously dangerous condition, and sank steadily until the end shortly after 8 A. M. today.

For the past year he had been living in the secluded estate of the Right Honorable Gerald Balfour, his brother, about a mile from this city.

For 50 years, he had been a notable figure in British and international politics. One of the brilliant achievements of his career revolved around his visit to the United States in 1917, as head of the British war mission. Upon his return, in 1922, as a delegate to the Washington naval conference, he was received in America as an "old friend."

The bulletin announcing his death was issued at 9:30 A. M., signed by Dr. R. Thorne-Thorne, his personal physician. Lord Balfour died peacefully.

His health forced his retirement from political or public activity nearly a year ago. But he leaves behind him a record of half a century in British politics, in which he had a great share in the process of empire building through the reigns of three sovereigns—Queen Victoria, King Edward and the present King George.

Lord Balfour's brother, Gerald Balfour, succeeds to the title.

The last official act of the late statesman was in May, 1929, when he presided over the privy council at Craigwell House, Bognor, at which King George signed the decree dissolving the parliament.

Funeral services will be held at Whittingham, Scotland, Sunday, and a memorial service will be given at Westminster Abbey at the same time.

Says Late William H. Taft

Washington, March 19.—(UP)—The late Chief Justice William Howard Taft was converted to prohibition after its adoption, his brother, Horace D. Taft, who looks very much like him, only thinner and taller, told the house judiciary committee in the prohibition hearings today.

Minor Tariff Amendments

Washington, March 19.—(UP)—An agreement limiting debate on minor tariff amendments to ten minutes for each speaker was adopted by the senate today in the hope of passing the measure this week.

Under the agreement, proposed by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, amendments pertaining to oil, lumber, silver and importers profits were excepted from the limitation.

SPEED WAR
ON RAIL LINESFIGHT FOR BEST TIME IN TRANS-CONTINENTAL FIELD OF
AND BURLINGTON IN CONFERENCE

St. Paul, March 19.—(UP)—Rumors of a trans-continental speed war between railroads serving the northwest and northern Pacific coast circulated today as the presidents of the four largest roads in the area met here.

The presidents were Ralph Budd, Great Northern; Charles Donnelly, Northern Pacific; Carl Gray, Union Pacific, and F. E. Williamson, Burlington.

All except Williamson, who arrived today, conferred in a private conference last night on the possibility of speeding up the trans-continental limited trains operating between Chicago and the Pacific northwest.

Recently the running time between the Twin Cities and Chicago was reduced to 9 hours and 50 minutes when the Northwestern's new Victory Special was inaugurated.

To meet the competition, the Burlington may reduce the running time of the trans-continental special trains by one hour. This would in effect shorten the time from Chicago to the coast by that hour.

Budd and Donnelly will confer with Williamson on a new proposed train schedule which would put the Burlington's reduction into effect on the cross-continent trains.

Budd, who returned from New York for the conference, said the main issue concerned in the proposal for merging the two Northerns was for the divestment of the Burlington.

The case has devolved into two main considerations, Budd said. "They are those of a legal and financial nature and those of operating principals. The financial, of course, includes the proposal to divorce the Burlington."

"I hope the whole thing may be worked out at an early date and some decision made."

EXPLODING SHELL

BRINGS IT DOWN

Hobart, Tasmania, March 18.—(UP)—An 18-inch shell exploded under a seaplane which was flying high above Norfolk Bay during naval gunnery practice today.

Although the plane was 1,000 feet above the warships, the explosion of the great shell brought it down. The wireless operator, MacGowan, was drowned and Lieut. Elliott and Flying Officer Grant, the other occupants of the plane, were injured severely.

DE RIVERA RITES
ARE HELD TODAYRULED SPAIN WITH RIGID HAND
FOR MORE THAN SIX
YEARSBy JOHN DE GANDT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Madrid, March 19.—Miguel Primo de Rivera, Marquis of Estella, who ruled Spain with a rigid hand for more than six years as dictator, was buried today while Madrid echoed with popular expressions in his honor. A demonstration occurred as the cortege, en route through the streets to San Isidro cemetery, reached the Toledo bridge. The crowd closed in and prevented the progress of the procession. They rushed the guards, shouting "Long live Spain," "Long live Estella," "Deat hto the assassins of Estella!"

The crowd made a martyr of the dictator who, when forced to resign, went into voluntary exile in Paris and died.

Cavalry re-established order and the procession continued to the cemetery, where burial occurred at 2 P. M. The streets of the city were lined with troops along the entire route. Cries of "Viva Estella" were repeatedly heard. Twelve airplanes flew overhead.

OUTSTANDING

DARK HORSE OF
TARIFF DEBATEANOTHER HEATED DEBATE EX-PECTED ON PROPOSAL OF
SEN. THOMAS, OKLAHOMAWANTS TO PLACE TARIFF OF $1
A BARREL ON CRUDE OIL
IMPORTED IN AMERICA

Washington, March 19.—(UP)—The senate today turned its attention to oil, the outstanding dark horse of the tariff debate.

Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, announced last night he would bring the subject of an oil duty before the body the first thing today, and another heated debate is anticipated on his proposal to place a tariff of $1 a barrel on crude oil imports and 50 per cent ad valorem mon imported oil products.

This proposal was defeated a month ago but is being brought up again on a motion to reconsider. Only six weeks ago the senate had never considered seriously any sort of duty on oil. Even proponents of an oil duty were so sure they had no chance of success they did not consider the matter seriously.

The arrivals in Washington at that time of a train load of independent operators from the southwest to stage a spectacular drive for the duty changed the outlook almost unbelievably, and high tariff men who have gained many votes in the last month, now hope to place oil on the dutiable list.

In the house the judiciary committee resumed its hearings on bills to repeal and modify the 18th amendment with a number of dry leaders, headed by Horace D. Taft, brother of the late chief justice, and Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, ready to continue testimony against the measures.

The drys expect to conclude their case within the next day or two but it is considered probable at least three more days will be required before wets can start their rebuttal testimony.

Charles A. Krickel, an official of the New York brokerage firm of Mott & Bonner, was to appear before the senate lobby committee today with books and records concerning a $34,100 fund paid to Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the republican national committee, by the Union Carbide Co.

The records were subpoenaed yesterday over the protests of Huston who is being questioned concerning his activities in connection with the Muscle Shoals lobby here.

The house continued debate on the motor bus regulation bills while its banking committee continued hearings on branch and chain banking practices.

Washington, March 19.—The senate lobby committee has exceeded its authority and denied American citizens "the right of petition to the government" guaranteed by the constitution, Senator Thomas, democrat, of Oklahoma, charged in the senate today as he opened a new fight for a tariff duty on petroleum.

Thomas proposed a duty of $1 a barrel on crude petroleum and 50 per cent on refined oil. A similar amendment was defeated in the senate recently by a dozen votes.

Allege Plot to Obtain Morphine with Counterfeit Prescriptions

Superior, Wis., March 19.—(UP)—Federal and county authorities today were investigating an alleged plot to obtain morphine with counterfeit prescriptions after Mrs. Louise Ball, 55, a suspected addict, was arrested.

Louis Weinberg, a druggist, revealed the prescription source when he detected forgery in the signature of Dr. W. H. Schnell on a prescription presented to him by a messenger. Mrs. Schnell was said to have sent the forged paper to the drug store.

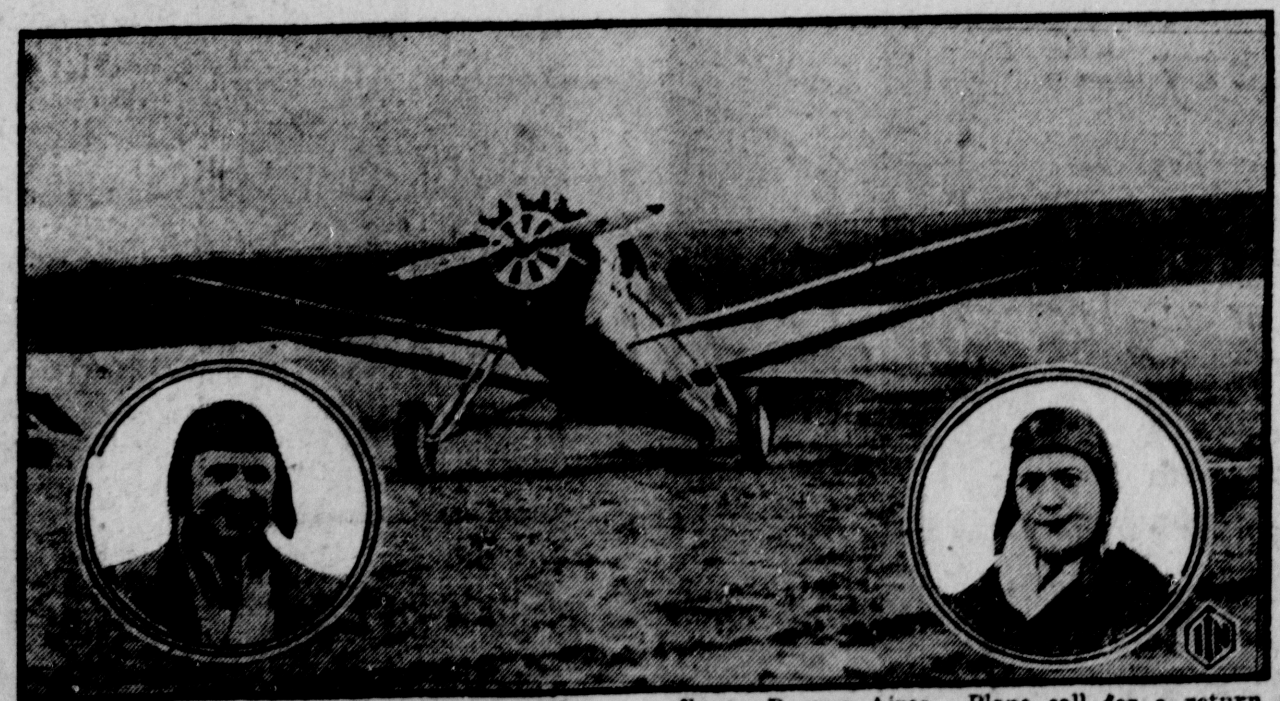

The prescription blank was believed to have been stolen from the physician's office and carried an order for 20 grains of morphine. It was made out for Henry Cline, 88.

MEXICAN BANDITS
HOLD OIL OPERATOR
CAPTIVE IN WILDS

San Angelo, Texas, March 19.—(UP)—Relatives of J. E. Brustow, 60-year-old oil operator who is held captive by Mexican bandits in the vicinity of Matatlan, Mexico, awaited word from the Mexican consul at El Paso today before deciding on their course of action.

A son, Gordon Oble Brustow, chartered a plane for a flight to aid his captive father but postponed his departure until additional news of his father had been received. The elder Brustow was reported exploring the country for oil when the bandits overtook him and made him prisoner.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

March 19, 1905

Alfred Patek, son of C. M. Patek, was a loser by the action of the Colorado legislature in seating Gov. Peabody. Mr. Patek had been appointed private secretary to Gov. Adams who was declared elected on the face of the returns and now loses his berth, which was a good one, the salary being $6,000 a year.

Jerry Glunt returned this morning from his western trip. While there he looked into the affairs of the Cooper Hill, Lone Star and Sunday Boy mining companies in which Brainerd people are interested.

The bar and lunch room of the Ransford will be opened tonight for the first time. The bar fixtures are beauties and the mixing will be in charge of Joseph McGinty, formerly with the Tozee people, Andrew Wesley being second man.

Yesterday was Mrs. Milton McFadden's 50th birthday and some of her lady friends gave her a surprise at the lodge rooms after the meeting of the Rathbone Sisters at which she is an active member. Ladies and gentlemen to the number of fifty assembled in the ante room and marched into the room where presentation speeches were made by Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Bertram.

Mayor Con O'Brien is in receipt of a telegram from Ben S. Armstrong, the creamery man, that he will be here Monday and it is expected that work will begin early next week.

W. E. Brockway is erecting a buggy shed on his premises on Fir street. He is also remodeling the interior of his residence.

The new fire team was tried out for the first time this morning. They were hitched one at a time with one of the old horses and went like veterans.

Samuel Gust Lind, one of Brainerd's oldest settlers, died this morning at his home in Northeast Brainerd. He has been an employee at the N. P. shops. The funeral will be held from the Swedish Mission Church.

"Disraeli" Warner Brothers all-talking dramatization of the famous stage success, will be shown at the Paramount theatre Thursday and Friday. In the title role of England's brilliant Prime Minister is Mr. George Arliss, the distinguished actor of the legitimate stage. It was Mr. Arliss, it will be remembered, for whom the play was originally written and in which he subsequently acted for nearly five years, both in New York and in many cities throughout the country. And although Mr. Arliss has appeared in a score of successes, it is generally conceded that his interpretation of Disraeli represents the high mark of his career.

Turning the light of Truth on false and misleading statements in recent cigarette advertising

WHAT ANOTHER MANUFACTURER of cigarettes chooses to say about his product is not our affair. Even when he sees fit to misrepresent his product and leave false impressions concerning it, that still is his business—not ours.

But—when, in his advertising, he goes beyond his own product and makes false statements or leaves misleading impressions about other cigarettes—then it is time that the truth be told.

Some time ago a manufacturer of cigarettes used the following statements in his advertising:

"The extra secret heating process removes from (——) harmful irritants, corrosive acids, which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way, and which cause throat irritation and coughing."

"No matter how much or how little you pay for cigarettes you have a choice of only two general classes, and not more than two. In one class you have the billions of cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way and in the other class you have (——), the toasted cigarette, a product of modern science, a cigarette from which harmful irritants have been removed by that extra secret process described by the phrase 'It's Toasted'."

WHEN THESE STATEMENTS were first made, we assumed that they were a casual phase of that manufacturer's advertising and did not represent a deliberate and calculated policy. After making a few such statements, he abandoned this particular form of advertising. However, other statements used in his advertising came to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission on a question of their truthfulness.

As a result of the action of the Federal Trade Commission he was ordered to stop his admitted practice of using in his advertising false testimonials of non-smokers to the effect that they kept slender by smoking his brand of cigarettes, and was further ordered to stop using other fake testimonials and the specious argument that all can keep slender by smoking that brand of cigarettes. He then began to use again the form of statement quoted above or variations of it.

IF ANY MANUFACTURER chooses to say that the tobaccos he uses contain "harmful irritants, corrosive acids, that are injurious to the throat," and then to claim that these things are removed by the heat-treating process, that is his own affair. But when he tries to create the impression that it is general practice to use in cigarettes such rank tobaccos as he describes, we object to the attempted reflection on the industry.

We have never used in our blend those rank tobaccos which can be properly described as containing "harmful irritants, corrosive acids," nor do we believe that they are used by some of the other manufacturers.

If that manufacturer wishes to advertise heat treatment, calling it toasting or what-not, that is his right. But when, in so doing, he tries to create the impression that he is the only maker of cigarettes who treats tobaccos with heat, the truth again needs to be told.

The publication of a fake testimonial is no greater perversion of the truth than to imply that the heat treatment of tobaccos is an exclusive process with any single manufacturer.

THE FACT is that the use of heat treatment in the manufacture of tobacco is about the most commonplace and universally practiced method in the industry. It has long been standard practice.

We use heat treatment in its most modern and scientific application, both in the preparation and in the manufacture of those mild, fragrant, ripe tobaccos that carry their natural goodness into CAMELS.

The first CAMEL Cigarette we ever made was manufactured under the heat-treating process. Every one of the billions of CAMELS produced since has been manufactured under heat treatment. We rely upon heat to the limits of its possibilities to make our good tobaccos better. It cannot make inferior tobaccos good.

WHETHER OR NOT a manufacturer, to have something to talk to the public about, attaches a contrivance to his heat-treating machines to catch, condense and bottle the vapors that come from them can have no more effect toward improving the tobacco than your catching and bottling the vapors that come from your teapot would have toward improving the tea in the pot.

Our own brand, CAMEL, continues to grow, but we are, nevertheless, unwilling to let these far-reaching false statements or impressions regarding the cigarette industry go uncorrected.

Spring Trade Week

SPRING TRADE WEEK, from March 24 to 29, has been sponsored by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and the committee named is doing everything possible to make the event such a success that it will be an annual affair in Brainerd.

Other cities like Duluth, Hibbing, Virginia, Rochester have made a success of Spring Trade Week because all merchants entered and gave their fullest cooperation. Albert Lea is trying it out this year and every hope for its success is entertained in that city.

The prime feature in Brainerd is the large list of prizes donated by the merchants, articles of real value given to the visitors who are fortunate in their quest as they visit the various stores cooperating. Large cards in the windows of the various stores will carry the numbers identifying the prizes.

This Friday, March 21, the Brainerd Dispatch will print a large Spring Trade Week edition containing advertisements of merchants, up to the minute shopping news, which will be given circulation throughout the trade territory of Brainerd. Each paper will carry a serial number imprinted on the front page of Section II. All that is necessary is for the holder of that paper to find the corresponding number in the merchant's window. If you do not find your prize the first day, do not discard your paper but continue your inspection of store windows daily, as new numbers will be displayed each day of Spring Trade Week. Your number on your paper should be checked every day with the merchants' window cards.

And your Friday paper is of further value, for the bargains it carries are given in detail and will assist you in your daily shopping during Spring Trade Week.

Every woman and many a man likes window shopping. The stores of the city will be wonderfully dressed up, with beautiful displays of merchandise in all windows. Window shopping becomes an actual necessity in order to follow the trail of the prizes and the glowing welcome from the outside of the store will reflect the cordial greeting and hearty good spirit of the business man and his clerks within who conduct the store.

New prizes daily will make it an event with a real appeal every day from March 24 to 29, both inclusive. Brainerd merchants will show their finest spring stocks, great arrays of real bargains in seasonable merchandise. Shop in Brainerd during Spring Trade Week is no idle slogan. It means mutual benefit for the merchants and the people attracted here.

Every effort is being made to spread the good news throughout Brainerd trade territory and to extend this area. Every satisfied customer of whatever store he trade with is an asset of the city.

If you have not joined in the Spring Trade Week activities, then see the committee who will be glad to give information. It is a goodwill movement and the more joining, the greater its cumulative effect.

Burning Old Slash and Uncut Meadow

E. H. RHODES, District Ranger whose headquarters are in Brainerd, voices the necessity of burning uncut meadows and old slash by April 1.

With the open fields and meadows practically clear of snow and the snow disappearing rapidly from the forest and brush land, it is high time that all necessary burning of uncut meadows that are to be used for hay for the coming season and old slash that is a hazard to timber, buildings and adjoining property, be done while there is little danger of fire getting beyond control.

Although the state law requires that burning permits be obtained for any burning while the ground is not snow-covered, the local District Ranger states that no check-up on burning permits is made until April 1, unless complaint is made into the office of fire destroying hay or other property, as he feels that with the ground still damp from the winter snows, drifts scattered in the thick woods and on the north hillsides, there is little or no damage done by running fire before April 1, therefore it is urged that as far as possible, the usual spring burning be done before that date, following which burning permits may be obtained of the local Township Fire Warden or the District Ranger.

WE think it poor policy on the part of Byrd to say he will make no claim to any land in the Antarctic in the name of the United States. We think he had better see the State Department of the U. S. A. before issuing premature statements of his intentions.

A PHASE of the wet question is not appreciated by some people. Light wines and beer will not appeal to the man who is satisfying his thirst with high proof bootleg liquor carrying a dynamite kick.

THE various movements to stimulate the tourist traffic are being brought into action early this year. The time to catch the tourist is before he tunes up his car and has made his decision where to go.

EDISON is planning machinery for his "goldenrod rubber." No hay fever addict will sneeze at his discovery, for it means laying low a lot of plants which contribute to the malady.

THINGS look good at the lakes and in town, as well as out in the country, for considerable extension in building projects.

AITKIN county's financial statement is most interesting, especially the enormous sum paid out for wolf bounties last year.

THE pedestrian has his rights in the world of traffic, but occasionally he is knocked down when he stands up for them.

THE late March sun is clearing away snow banks and ice heaps and improving curb movement of cars.

A PEDESTRIAN, says Life, is just a man who is here today and run over tomorrow.

As civilization becomes more of a polish, we inherit new diseases and disorders.

EXTENSION of highway work will give employment to many people.

New Iso-Vis means protection not only when the oil is fresh—but every mile you drive. You do not need to drain this oil because it has "thinned out", but simply because of the dirt which inevitably collects in your crankcase.

Spring Trade Week

SPRING TRADE WEEK, from March 24 to 29, has been sponsored by the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce and the committee named is doing everything possible to make the event such a success that it will be an annual affair in Brainerd.

Other cities like Duluth, Hibbing, Virginia, Rochester have made a success of Spring Trade Week because all merchants entered and gave their fullest cooperation. Albert Lea is trying it out this year and every hope for its success is entertained in that city.

The prime feature in Brainerd is the large list of prizes donated by the merchants, articles of real value given to the visitors who are fortunate in their quest as they visit the various stores cooperating. Large cards in the windows of the various stores will carry the numbers identifying the prizes.

This Friday, March 21, the Brainerd Dispatch will print a large Spring Trade Week edition containing advertisements of merchants, up to the minute shopping news, which will be given circulation throughout the trade territory of Brainerd. Each paper will carry a serial number imprinted on the front page of Section II. All that is necessary is for the holder of that paper to find the corresponding number in the merchant's window. If you do not find your prize the first day, do not discard your paper but continue your inspection of store windows daily, as new numbers will be displayed each day of Spring Trade Week. Your number on your paper should be checked every day with the merchants' window cards.

And your Friday paper is of further value, for the bargains it carries are given in detail and will assist you in your daily shopping during Spring Trade Week.

Every woman and many a man likes window shopping. The stores of the city will be wonderfully dressed up, with beautiful displays of merchandise in all windows. Window shopping becomes an actual necessity in order to follow the trail of the prizes and the glowing welcome from the outside of the store will reflect the cordial greeting and hearty good spirit of the business man and his clerks within who conduct the store.

New prizes daily will make it an event with a real appeal every day from March 24 to 29, both inclusive. Brainerd merchants will show their finest spring stocks, great arrays of real bargains in seasonal merchandise. Shop in Brainerd during Spring Trade Week is no idle slogan. It means mutual benefit for the merchants and the people attracted here.

Every effort is being made to spread the good news throughout Brainerd trade territory and to extend this area. Every satisfied customer of whatever store he trade with is an asset of the city.

If you have not joined in the Spring Trade Week activities, then see the committee who will be glad to give information. It is a goodwill movement and the more joining, the greater its cumulative effect.

Burning Old Slash and Uncut Meadow

E. H. RHODES, District Ranger whose headquarters are in Brainerd, voices the necessity of burning uncut meadows and old slash by April 1.

With the open fields and meadows practically clear of snow and the snow disappearing rapidly from the forest and brush land, it is high time that all necessary burning of uncut meadows that are to be used for hay for the coming season and old slash that is a hazard to timber, buildings and adjoining property, be done while there is little danger of fire getting beyond control.

Although the state law requires that burning permits be obtained for any burning while the ground is not snow-covered, the local District Ranger states that no check-up on burning permits is made until April 1, unless complaint is made into the office of fire destroying hay or other property, as he feels that with the ground still damp from the winter snows, drifts scattered in the thick woods and on the north hillsides, there is little or no damage done by running fire before April 1, therefore it is urged that as far as possible, the usual spring burning be done before that date, following which burning permits may be obtained of the local Township Fire Warden or the District Ranger.

We think it poor policy on the part of Byrd to say he will make no claim to any land in the Antarctic in the name of the United States. We think he had better see the State Department of the U. S. A. before issuing premature statements of his intentions.

A PHASE of the wet question is not appreciated by some people. Light wines and beer will not appeal to the man who is satisfying his thirst with high proof bootleg liquor carrying a dynamite kick.

THE various movements to stimulate the tourist traffic are being brought into action early this year. The time to catch the tourist is before he tunes up his car and has made his decision where to go.

EDISON is planning machinery for his "goldenrod rubber." No hay fever addict will sneeze at his discovery, for it means laying low a lot of plants which contribute to the malady.

THINGS look good at the lakes and in town, as well as out in the country, for considerable extension in building projects.

AITKIN county's financial statement is most interesting, especially the enormous sum paid out for wolf bounties last year.

THE pedestrian has his rights in the world of traffic, but occasionally he is knocked down when he stands up for them.

THE late March sun is clearing away snow banks and ice heaps and improving curb movement of cars.

A PEDESTRIAN, says Life, is just a man who is here today and run over tomorrow.

As civilization becomes more of a polish, we inherit new diseases and disorders.

EXTENSION of highway work will give employment to many people.

SWISS SURGEON RUNNER WINS IN 1,000 YARD RUN

VICTORY IS COMEBACK AFTER
CONGER PREVIOUSLY BEAT
SWISS IN LAST RACE

MARTIN BETTERS BEST AMERICAN MARK BY TWO-TENTHS SECONDS

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, March 19.—Dr. Paul Martin, Swiss surgeon runner, was doing a lot of thinking today, and most of it was about a bell lap sprint that worked. He won over Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., his pet rival, in the 1,000 yards run of the national A. A. U. championships.

The victory was something in the way of a comeback for the Swiss who was beaten by inches in his last race with Conger, the famous Columbian miler of the K. C. meet.

In that race Martin's bell lap sprint did not work. He started it too late. He had believed he had a whole lap to go when he was half a lap from the end, and later announced himself as being "disgusted with my own stupidity." It became an open secret that Martin was desperately determined to beat Conger in the A. A. U. race, partly for revenge and partly to vindicate a post race "explanation."

Martin's time in last night's 1,000 yards run was 2 minutes 10 6-10 seconds. That bettered the best American mark by 2-10 seconds.

Despite Conger's defeat the Illinois A. C. enjoyed a large evening. The Chicago tracksters took first place in the team score with 18 points, beating the New York A. C. by four points.

Hermann Brix of the Los Angeles A. C. won the 16-pound shot put with a heave of 51 feet 2 1/2 inches, setting a new world's record, the only one made in the meet. Schwartz was defending his title world's mark in this event and bettered his old record of 50 feet 3 inches by 1-1/8 inches.

Lee Sentman, of the University of Illinois, equalled the world's record for the 70-yard high hurdles in winning the event in 8 6-10 seconds.

FURTHER FIGURES OF THE LITERARY DIGEST'S POLL

New York, March 19.—(U.P.)—Seventeen of the 23 cities reporting to date in the Literary Digest's prohibition poll have indicated opposition to prohibition enforcement as it is now, according to incomplete figures announced by the magazine.

Six cities, most of them in the middle west, voted for enforcement as against modification or repeal of the prohibition laws. They were: Topeka, Kan.; Wichita, Kan.; Kansas City, Kan.; Kansas City, Mo.; Des Moines, Ia.; and Lincoln, Neb.

The poll as announced by the publication showed:

One mythical all-regional team composed of Wright and Dawson of Appleton, Bauer and Mills of Buffalo and Krueger of Crosby-Ironton has been named. It is too bad that Brainerd and St. Cloud Tech couldn't have competed in that tourney because Doane of St. Cloud and Haultala and Guin of Brainerd would undoubtedly have made strong bids for all-regional berths.

John Perlich of Crosby-Ironton was second high scorer in the recent regional at St. Cloud. He was followed closely for third place by his teammate, Captain Krueger of the Rangers. Wright, Appleton forward, led the scoring with 25 points.

Babe Ruth hasn't exactly looked as though he is worth the $160,000 that is to be paid for his services during the next two years. In the last two exhibition games the Babe didn't get a hit in one contest and in the other he had to be contented with a solitary single.

Bemidji staged a very successful amateur fight card on St. Patrick's day, all of which reminds us that there should be a very good wrestling match in Brainerd next Monday night when Fred Ross of Pequot meets Alfred Barslow of Iowa. Ross is an old veteran of the game and Barslow is considered as a leading contender for the lightweight championship! Nuff said!

A number of good preliminaries have been arranged for the Ross-Barslow match. There will be some amateur boxers in there swapping punches, trying to put over Trade Week in their own style.

Craig Ruby, basketball coach at the University of Illinois blames dribbling for slowing up the court game. He seems to think that dribbling was responsible for the delayed or "stalling" offense, resulting in low scores and lack of speed. He may be right, at that. But it takes a smart ball club to stall in the right way.

The inter-class basketball tournament now in session at the high school is a good thing for high school sports. The tournament may be the means of uncovering some good basketball material that has been heretofore unnoticed.

HAS TAKEN UP MATTER OFFICIALLY WITH ALL AMERICAN LEAGUE CLUB OWNERS

(Copyright, 1930, by United Press)
St. Petersburg, Fla., March 19.—Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League, hopes to eliminate baseball's "cheap home run" without tampering with the present lively ball. Barnard revealed to a United Press representative that he had taken up the matter officially with all American League club owners, and that while as yet he had received no ready response, he was hopeful of success.

The league head said that he had proposed that all home run sectors closer than 350 feet to the plate be screened off. He indicated that the acceptance of his idea depended on the attitude of the New York Yankees. All the other clubs, he said, were adverse to passing any legislation which might be interpreted as a possible blow at the Yankees.

"I have asked our league to adopt a rule which would call for a 30-foot screen in all home run areas within 325 feet of the plate and a 20-foot screen between 315 and 350 feet," Barnard said. "This would make only the territory beyond 350 feet absolutely free for the home run hitter, and would raise the four-base drive in the estimation of fans."

"This screen proposal might look like a potential handicap for Babe Ruth, but as a matter of fact the adoption of my idea would glorify Ruth, make him bigger than ever, and make his feats stand out more resplendently."

"You know how Ruth hits those home runs around the circuit, and I doubt if his total would be reduced by as many as three or four. Ruth hits them into the street in Cleveland, where there is a 45-foot screen in right field. He hits them out of the park in Detroit, St. Louis and Philadelphia. Screens would not bother him but would cut down the numbers of home run hitters."

"At present players who have no right to be swinging for homers are using the Ruth type of batting. I think it's time to step in and do something to cut down the mania."

"The public wants the lively ball, with the speed it has brought into baseball, but it doesn't want a flock of cheap home runs, and it would appreciate a return of some of the older sort of hitting. By all means let us not do anything to really hamper a man like Ruth."

The screening proposition would affect only four American League parks—New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Detroit. In the last two named cities screens already in place would have to be heightened. In Philadelphia the lower tier of the far stands would be shut off. In New York the right field bleacher and the left field stand would be affected.

The screen idea gained some headway last season when the St. Louis Cardinals and Phillies put up barriers in right field. The Pittsburgh Pirates are erecting a screen at Forbes field, but in the past neither New York club has taken kindly to the movement.

PRELIMINARIES BOOKED
FOR U. C. T. HALL CARD

Alfred Barslow, of Svea City, who with Fred Ross of Pequot will provide a classic tussle on the mat as a headliner of the boxing and wrestling card sponsored by John Beck at the U. C. T. auditorium Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock, will work out at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock tonight and any desiring to see him in action may attend.

Six preliminaries in boxing and wrestling will be booked for an interesting evening of ring sport.

From the Pequot camp of Fred Ross comes word that the mat artist is completing his training for the event. He is reported in equally as good condition as when he met Beck on the mat here last spring.

Barslow held the Rocky Mountain states 135-pound title in 1927. He started his wrestling career at 17 and has been at the game for 12 years. In spite of his youth he is already rated by promoters as a veteran of the sport. To date he has not been beaten by any wrestler his weight. He has met such mat stars as Chauncey Yost, Billy Manneman, Arthur Holding, A. A. U. champion and Olympic title holder in 1928, Irvine Carroll, Johnny Butler and Earl Conrad.

SWISS SURGEON RUNNER WINS IN 1,000 YARD RUN

VICTORY IS COMEBACK AFTER
CONGER PREVIOUSLY BEAT
SWISS IN LAST RACE

MARTIN BETTERS BEST AMERICAN MARK BY TWO-TENTHS SECONDS

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, March 19.—Dr. Paul Martin, Swiss surgeon runner, was doing a lot of thinking today, and most of it was about a bell lap sprint that worked. He won over Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., his pet rival, in the 1,000 yards run of the national A. A. U. championships.

The victory was something in the way of a comeback for the Swiss who was beaten by inches in his last race with Conger, the famous Columbian miler of the K. C. meet.

In that race Martin's bell lap sprint did not work. He started it too late. He had believed he had a whole lap to go when he was half a lap from the end, and later announced himself as being "disgusted with my own stupidity." It became an open secret that Martin was desperately determined to beat Conger in the A. A. U. race, partly for revenge and partly to vindicate a post race "explanation."

Martin's time in last night's 1,000 yards run was 2 minutes 10 6-10 seconds. That bettered the best American mark by 2-10 seconds.

Despite Conger's defeat the Illinois A. C. enjoyed a large evening. The Chicago tracksters took first place in the team score with 18 points, beating the New York A. C. by four points.

Hermann Brix of the Los Angeles A. C. won the 16-pound spot put with a heave of 51 feet 2 1/2 inches, setting a new world's record, the only one made in the meet. Schwartz was defending his title world's mark in this event and bettered his old record of 50 feet 3 inches by 1 1/8 inches.

Lee Sentman, of the University of Illinois, equalled the world's record for the 70-yard high hurdles in winning the event in 8 6-10 seconds.

FURTHER FIGURES OF THE LITERARY DIGEST'S POLL

New York, March 19.—(U.P.)—Seventeen of the 23 cities reporting to date in the Literary Digest's prohibition poll have indicated opposition to prohibition enforcement as it is now, according to incomplete figures announced by the magazine.

Six cities, most of them in the middle west, voted for enforcement as against modification or repeal of the prohibition laws. They were: Topeka, Kan.; Wichita, Kan.; Kansas City, Kan.; Kansas City, Mo.; Des Moines, Ia., and Lincoln, Neb.

The poll as announced by the publication showed:

En- for- ce- ment	Modi- fica- tion	Repeal	Total
Minneapolis 5025	5415	7119	16559
St. Paul 1389	2995	4270	8654

One mythical all-regional team composed of Wright and Dawson of Appleton, Bauer and Mills of Buffalo and Krueger of Crosby-Ironton has been named. It is too bad that Brainerd and St. Cloud Tech couldn't have competed in that tourney because Doane of St. Cloud and Hautala and Guin of Brainerd would undoubtedly have made strong bids for all-regional berths.

John Peripich of Crosby-Ironton was second high scorer in the recent regional at St. Cloud. He was followed closely for third place by his teammate, Captain Krueger of the Rangers. Wright, Appleton forward, led the scoring with 29 points.

Babe Ruth hasn't exactly looked as though he is worth the $100,000 that is to be paid for his services during the next two years. In the last two exhibition games the Babe didn't get a hit in one contest and in the other he had to be contented with a solitary single.

Bentley staged a very successful amateur fight card on St. Patrick's day, all of which reminds us that there should be a very good wrestling match in Brainerd next Monday night when Fred Ross of Pequot meets Alfred Barslou of Iowa. Ross is an old veteran at the game and Barslou is considered as a leading contender for the lightweight championship. Nuff said!

A number of good preliminaries have been arranged for the Ross-Barslou match. There will be some amateur boxers in there swapping punches, trying to put over Trade Week in their own style.

Craig Ruby, basketball coach at the University of Illinois blames dribbling for slowing up the court game. He seems to think that dribbling was responsible for the delayed or "stalling" offense, resulting in low scores and lack of speed. He may be right, at that. But it takes a smart ball club to stall in the right way.

The inter-class basketball tournament now in session at the high school is a good thing for high school sports. The tournament may be the means of uncovering some good basketball material that has been heretofore unnoticed.

STRIKE BLOW AT MINE ORGANIZATION OF ALEXANDER HOWAT

Indianapolis, Ind., March 19.—(U.P.)—A resolution authorizing President John L. Lewis to revoke the charter of district 11, Kansas, was adopted today by delegates of the United Mine Workers of America meeting.

The resolution provided that Lewis may set up a provisional union government in the district "until conditions return to normal." The move was considered a direct blow at Alexander Howat, president of the district, and newly elected head of the mine organization set up at Springfield, Ill.

Each group member was asked to give a three minute talk on some phase of the project.

The topics were selected by the leaders and are as follows: Mrs. A. Swanson, ventilators; Mrs. F. Turcotte, vacuum cleaners; Mrs. Cunningham, storage closets for cleaning equipment; Mrs. J. Pointon, the value of a notebook in this work; Mrs. Schone, installation of a water system; Mrs. Cook, the use of a ladder stool in my kitchen; Mrs. Tracy, curtains, purpose, material, making and hanging; Sylvia Johnson, test meal; Mrs. Holler, correct working heights; Mrs. Aspholm, commercial equipment; Gladys Schone, ten good cleaning hints; Mrs. C. Larson, the laying and care of linoleum.

COMPARE VALUES BEFORE YOU BUY AN AUTOMOBILE

Low charges for distribution of the new Ford save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in making the car

THESE are days when every dollar counts. The period of reckless spending is over. People are going back to the good old-fashioned principles of thrift and economy. Value is again being carefully considered.

Nowhere is this more important than in the selection of an automobile. For the purchase of a car represents a considerable investment. It should not be decided on hurriedly, but only after analyzing every important factor that concerns cost, value and performance. The time to do this is before buying—not afterward when it is too late.

ON THE basis of cost, performance and the actual comparative worth of every part, the new Ford is a value far above the price you pay. It is made of better materials and with greater care and accuracy because of the recognized efficiency and economy of Ford manufacturing methods.

The value of these methods is known and understood by millions of people. It is not generally realized, however, that these same principles of efficiency and economy are applied also to every step in the distribution of the Ford car. The low cost of selling, financing time payments, etc., means a direct saving to you of at least $50 to $75 in addition to the money saved by Ford economies in making the car. Here are three reasons why this is so.

(1) The Ford dealer does business on a smaller margin of profit because of the greater number of cars he sells. His discount or commission is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference in your favor, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

(2) The Ford charges for financing are low.

(3) No expensive extra equipment is needed when you buy a Ford. The car leaves the factory ready for use. The f.o.b. price includes a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield and an extra steel-spoke wheel, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes. Any accessories you may wish for your individual taste are sold considerably below the usual prices. None of these charges for selling, financing or accessories is marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

Get all the facts, therefore, before you buy and figure out just what you are getting for your automobile dollars. Go beyond the f.o.b. price and find out how much more you pay the dealer than the dealer pays at the factory. Analyze the used-car allowance. Compare all charges—item for item—value for value.

WHEN you do this you will have a new appreciation of what the Ford Motor Company and Ford dealers are doing to keep down the cost of Ford cars. You will also know why it is possible to put so much real value into the new Ford and still retain the low price. The money you pay goes for value in the car. It is not wasted in excessive costs in manufacturing or selling.

STRESSES LOYALTY TO CITY IN TALK

Harry L. Kyes Urges Friendly Cooperation in Business and Social Activities

COMPARES CITY AS PLANT

C. A. Ryan Asks for Fair Play and Continued Unified Effort for City's Good

Explaining that he did not come to Brainerd to "lambast" the chain stores but to encourage the independent merchants of this city, that the pendulum is swinging to their side through wholehearted cooperation in business, social and civic life, Harry L. Kyes of Minneapolis, secretary of the National Merchants Association and the Minneapolis Service Bureau, gave an inspiring talk to more than 60 independent merchants, professional men and citizens interested in the business and social life of the community gathered in the Farmers Room of the Court House last evening.

Mr. Kyes' talk was one to reborn loyalty to Brainerd in the hearts of the independent merchant for as he explained the city can only prosper through friendly relations, each striving to better social and industrial life.

He compared the community as a large manufacturing plant which produced health, happiness and prosperity, and that the byproduct of this plant is men and women and children who will benefit if the plant is operating smoothly.

He made a plea to everyone to buy at home and to retain friendly relations all pulling for the good of Brainerd.

"Start a fight and you will find the consumer trading elsewhere," he said. He set down three laws of business which he said must be rigidly enforced to create a successful business. These, he said were:

Honest merchandising.
Fair prices.
Intelligent service.
"Be loyal to your home town merchant, the man who pays taxes to maintain your schools, your churches, your parks, and your civic life. All things being equal give your business to the independent," Mr. Kyes advocated.

Every man has his niche in public life. Find that, place him there and you will find better cooperation, a more progressive community and happiness, the speaker continued.

He classified men as interested in the following: religion activities, school activities, social life, industrial life, politics.

"Your churches are a necessary part of the success of your business and the progressiveness of your community. No merchant will establish in a town or city that does not back its churches. Take more interest too in your school activities for it is through education that a city expands and prospers. Adopt a social life that will interest your community to remain at home. Establish industry on a high plane. Pay better than a living wage so that the worker can enjoy the privileges intended for him. If a man is not interested in the four mentioned place him in politics," Mr. Kyes related.

Ryan Makes Plea

C. A. Ryan, before introducing Mr. Kyes, said he wished to say a few words as president of the Chamber of Commerce.

He made a strong plea for cooperation in Chamber of Commerce work. He spoke frankly, saying that those present might not like what he was going to tell them.

"Some of you men have refused to serve on committees with chain store men. That is wrong because when you are doing that you are not serving your community and you are hurting yourself. In helping the community you are helping yourself. Don't let anything disrupt the friendly relations we have enjoyed in the past. Be fair-minded and above all things use fair play," Mr. Ryan said.

"We have a civic spirit second to none anywhere. We have done things of which we are all proud. We have accomplished that by pulling together and uniting our efforts. Do not forget that a chain store man was at the head of the Chamber of Commerce when the plant was fostered for the construction of the Brainerd Pine Beach tourist hotel. Brainerd has a chance to secure the new state's prison. Let's all get behind that project and make it a reality for Brainerd," he stated.

Previous to assembling at the court house the board of directors of the Brainerd Independent Merchants Association met with Mr. Kyes and a few invited guests at a dinner at Archer's restaurant.

ARE WE A CHAIN STORE?

This Question Has Been Asked Us Many Times

NO---But---

1. We have the operating economies the chain stores are said to possess through mass buying and mass selling.
2. We have the selling economies equal to any organization.
3. We are placed in position through these economies to save you considerable on every dollar you spend for hardware of quality.

NO---

We ARE NOT similar to a chain inasmuch as---

1. The buying power represented through Marshall-Wells Company and thousands of other independent hardware merchants is greater than the hardware buying power of any organization, anywhere.
2. We own every dollar of our business.
3. Ask our Bank.
4. We are as independent of Wall Street or any other outside capital as any business in our city.

We respect all "outside" competition---We fear none. We are properly organized and have back of our independence the World's Largest Hardware Organization to GUARANTEE THAT INDEPENDENCE.

STRESSES LOYALTY TO CITY IN TALK

Harry L. Kyes Urges Friendly Cooperation in Business and Social Activities

COMPARES CITY AS PLANT

C. A. Ryan Asks for Fair Play and Continued Unified Effort for City's Good

Explaining that he did not come to Brainerd to "lambast" the chain stores but to encourage the independent merchants of this city, that the pendulum is swinging to their side through whole hearted cooperation in business, social and civic life, Harry L. Kyes of Minneapolis, secretary of the National Merchants Association and the Minneapolis Service Bureau, gave an inspiring talk to more than 60 independent merchants, professional men and citizens interested in the business and social life of the community gathered in the Farmers Room of the Court House last evening.

Mr. Kyes' talk was one to reborn loyalty to Brainerd in the hearts of the independent merchant for as he explained the city can only prosper through friendly relations, each striving to better social and industrial life.

He compared the community as a large manufacturing plant which produced health, happiness and prosperity, and that the byproduct of this plant is men and women and children who will benefit if the plant is operating smoothly.

He made a plea to everyone to buy at home and to retain friendly relations all pulling for the good of Brainerd.

"Start a fight and you will find the consumer trading elsewhere," he said. He set down three laws of business which he said must be rigidly enforced to create a successful business. These, he said were:

Honest merchandising.

Fair prices.

Intelligent service.

"Be loyal to your home town merchant, the man who pays taxes to maintain your schools, your churches, your parks, and your civic life. All things being equal give your business to the independent," Mr. Kyes advocated.

Every man has his niche in public life. Find that, place him there and you will find better cooperation, a more progressive community and happiness, the speaker continued.

He classified men as interested in the following: religion activities, school activities, social life, industrial life, politics.

"Your churches are a necessary part of the success of your business and the progressiveness of your community. No merchant will establish in a town or city that does not back its churches. Take more interest too in your school activities for it is through education that a city expands and prospers. Adopt a social life that will interest your community to remain at home. Establish industry on a high plane. Pay better than a living wage so that the worker can enjoy the privileges intended for him. If a man is not interested in the four mentioned place him in politics," Mr. Kyes related.

Ryan Makes Plea

C. A. Ryan, before introducing Mr. Kyes, said he wished to say a few words as president of the Chamber of Commerce.

He made a strong plea for cooperation in Chamber of Commerce work. He spoke frankly, saying that those present might not like what he was going to tell them.

"Some of you men have refused to serve on committees with chain store men. That is wrong because when you are doing that you are not serving your community and you are hurting yourself. In helping the community you are helping yourself. Don't let anything disrupt the friendly relations we have enjoyed in the past. Be fair-minded and above all things use fair play," Mr. Ryan said.

"We have a civic spirit second to none anywhere. We have done things of which we are all proud. We have accomplished that by pulling together and uniting our efforts. Do not forget that a chain store man was at the head of the Chamber of Commerce when the plan was fostered for the construction of the Brainerd Pine Beach tourist hotel. Brainerd has a chance to secure the new state's prison. Let's all get behind that project and make it a reality for Brainerd," he stated.

Previous to assembling at the court house the board of directors of the Brainerd Independent Merchants Association met with Mr. Kyes and a few invited guests at a dinner at Archer's restaurant.

HAS 96th BIRTHDAY IN HOUSE SHE LIVED IN FOR 77 YEARS

Mrs. Gracia A. Rose has returned from a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. May H. Oliver of Lakeland, Minn. "My mother was 96 years old March 8 and is enjoying good health. She doesn't look over 50," Mrs. Rose said. Mrs. Oliver has lived on the same farm and in the same house since her marriage 77 years ago.

Mrs. Rose baked for the birthday occasion a Cherry Mound cake with 96 red cherries on the top layer. The cake was nine inches high.

Among those present for the party was Mrs. Clara E. Warrick of Minneapolis, a granddaughter. Mrs. Oliver received congratulations on her health from relatives and her many friends.

RANGE LADIES WERE GUESTS

Presbyterian Ladies Aid Entertain Members of Crosby and Ironton Aids

This afternoon the Presbyterian ladies aid met at the church for their regular meeting. They had as their guests 22 ladies from Crosby and 15 ladies from Ironton, members of the Crosby and Ironton Presbyterian aids.

A very good program was given, among the numbers being selections by the Presbyterian ladies aid quartet composed of Mrs. M. E. Morrison, Mrs. J. E. Erickson, Mrs. Charles Riak and Mrs. E. W. McCulloch. The Brainerd ladies quartet, which includes Mrs. Mahlum, Mrs. Katherine Silk, Mrs. H. Paine and Mrs. A. W. Moulster also gave some songs which were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. A. G. Patterson gave the address of welcome and readings were given by Miss Evelyn Olson. Games were also conducted by a committee.

Refreshments were served by the officers of the aid: Mrs. A. M. Opsahl, president; Mrs. D. Carbine, vice president; Mrs. Robert Falconer, second vice president; Mrs. Carl Bentley, secretary and Mrs. George W. Putz, treasurer.

TRAPPERS RUSH FOR LICENSES

Auditor's Office Reports 700 Already Issued; Rat Season Opens March 20

The office of County Auditor C. W. Mahlum is being besieged these days for trapping licenses. The rush is brought on by the fact that the muskrat season will open tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon and will continue until noon, April 15.

To date 700 trapping licenses have been issued by the office. The license costs $1 and permits the holder to trap animals in season.

CONDUCT RITES FOR F. H. GRUENHAGEN

"He was my personal friend. The city and county will miss him greatly." Expressions like this were heard on all sides yesterday afternoon as hundreds attended funeral rites of F. H. Gruenhagen, prominent Brainerd business man who died following a brief illness Sunday.

The Zion Evangelical Lutheran church, corner of Eighth and Main streets, was filled to overflowing for the services conducted by Rev. F. C. Rathert. Burial rites were held at Evergreen cemetery.

ARE WE A CHAIN STORE?

This Question Has Been Asked Us Many Times

NO---But---

1. We have the operating economies the chain stores are said to possess through mass buying and mass selling.
2. We have the selling economies equal to any organization.
3. We are placed in position through these economies to save you considerable on every dollar you spend for hardware of quality.

NO---

We ARE NOT similar to a chain inasmuch as---

1. The buying power represented through Marshall-Wells Company and thousands of other independent hardware merchants is greater than the hardware buying power of any organization, anywhere.
2. We own every dollar of our business.
3. Ask our Bank.
4. We are as independent of Wall Street or any other outside capital as any business in our city.

We respect all "outside" competition---We fear none. We are properly organized and have back of our independence the World's Largest Hardware Organization to GUARANTEE THAT INDEPENDENCE.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"A THOUSAND pardons if I disturb a reverie!" he exclaimed. "Your housekeeper directed me to the garden."

"I'm sorry," laughed Shirley. "I'm afraid I shall not be in the country long enough to train her properly. I wasn't really dreaming, Monsieur Maurois. I was only thinking how nice it would be to fly across this bay, perch on Mount Olympus and then fly back again."

"That could easily be arranged," said Maurois seriously. "But not this morning, I'm afraid. I can, however, offer you a poor substitute. I had called in the hope that you and your husband would let me take you for a run and show you a bit of the country. I had in mind a little jaunt, of a hundred kilometres perhaps, that would enable us to be back before the light fails."

"How perfectly delightful of you!" exclaimed Shirley. "But, unfortunately, Alan left about an hour ago—he's spending two or three days up-country and I am all alone."

"That is in the nature of a catastrophe," said Maurois. "If he had consulted me first I could perhaps have made his journey a little easier. It is a lovely morning. A day to take the air. It emboldens me to repeat my invitation."

"And me to accept it," said Shirley. "Thanks tremendously. Give me five minutes to wrap up."

Five minutes later, wrapped in furs, she was sitting beside him in an open car. In front was a man servant sitting beside the chauffeur, and Shirley wondered whether he were an armed policeman in plain clothes.

The car took them through the suburb of Kalamaria eastwards, and in ten minutes had brought them to open country.

"How beautifully your man drives," said Shirley. "This is the first bit of fresh air I've had for a month or more."

"He is a new man," answered Maurois. "He is not yet fully trained. But he shows promise."

Shirley nodded indifferently. She did not want to talk—wanted merely to lounge back and enjoy the rush through the air. As if he had perceived this Maurois made no further remarks, yet subtly conveyed the impression that he was vastly enjoying himself.

For an hour or more they ran through rambling hills, a fringe of the Balkan range. Then, after a long climb to a grassy plateau, Maurois stopped the car.

"I think we will lunch here," he said. "While my man is getting it ready, let us stroll to the top there and I will show you a pleasing valley."

Shirley admired the valley without effort. She was even enthusiastic, but her enthusiasm was less for the valley than the occasion. She was enjoying herself, enjoying particularly the society of Maurois. It was one thing to turn one's back on the high world, but it was undeniably pleasant to be treated once again as a beautiful woman. Maurois was an ideal companion for a day of idleness.

The lunch she thought a little too elaborate for a picnic, and she risked hurting her feelings by refusing to drink more than one glass of champagne. She gathered that the second man, so far from being an armed escort, was a domestic servant. When he produced excellently made coffee, served in a dainty coffee cup, Shirley permitted herself to laugh.

"Monsieur Maurois, you asked me to a picnic and you are giving me a banquet."

"He was quick to catch the faint irony of her voice."

"That tells me I have failed," he said gloomily. "It is the tragedy of my race. It is given to us to do many things better than other nations can do them, but they

"Oh, come," answered Shirley. "I've never enjoyed a picnic so much in all my life. Perfect."

"That makes me nervous. Let us hurry away from it while we both share that illusion."

A few minutes later they had resumed their journey.

"There will be no more speed for the next thirty kilometres or so," said Maurois. "For the road becomes very rough. Nevertheless, you will have the leisure to observe a Balkan village."

As he spoke they turned the bend and passed through a village of twenty or more squat houses, built on a hillside one above the other. Shirley looked for signs of life and found none.

"It's abandoned, isn't it?" she asked.

"No. The women are all inside—from one of the houses you can see smoke. The men are in the hills. This is a Comitadj village—bandits—and I fancy the men are all away on business."

"But—do the authorities know that? Why do they let them—"

"Ah! I was wrong. They are not so far away," interrupted Maurois. "Look ahead. You are now going to see an interesting spectacle—the Comitadj at work."

A hundred yards ahead a number of men on horses were galloping from behind a rocky crag, shouting to each other and spreading over the road. Shirley supposed there must have been twenty or thirty of them.

"They see in us a profitable enterprise," Maurois told her. "Are you afraid?"

"I suppose I am a bit," answered Shirley. "But not as much as I ought to be. What will they do to us?"

"You are a brave woman," said Maurois, touching her hand. "They will do nothing to us—as you will see."

The horsemen halted, massed in the middle of the road, barring it. Shots were fired in the air, then four men, brandishing revolvers, rode forward.

As they neared the car, Maurois stood up and addressed them roughly in a language which Shirley did not understand. Instantly the men pocketed their revolvers, and the leader shouted to his followers, who promptly turned about and scattered. The leader dismounted, came to the side of the car and addressed Maurois volubly in apologetic tones. Maurois waved him away and the car continued.

"A little misunderstanding. That fellow was explaining that it was unreasonable of me to expect him to recognize my chauffeur at that distance—especially as I have only had him such a short time."

"They know you, then—the bandits?" asked Shirley.

"Scarcely," he answered. "But as I think I mentioned, I have many interests in Macedonia."

Shirley shrank back into her corner. For a moment she had felt suddenly afraid of Maurois. That quick, intuitive fear of Maurois was gone in a second, leaving behind merely the pleasing tang of adventure. There was adventure in Maurois as well as entertainment. Here was a man who knew a great deal more than he admitted—a rich man who used his money to bring him power over unexpected persons in unexpected places.

For two hours the car made slow progress over rough roads, through bleak, forbidding country whose only charm lay in its wildness. Maurois, gossiping with idle fluency, stopping the car to show her now a battlefield, now a legendary resting place of Saint Paul, kept her interested so that she could feel a pang of regret as they can back through the city.

"I have enjoyed it immensely," she said as they neared Kalamaria.

"I can't tell you how grateful I am."

"Dear lady, today I have lived in the civilization I have abandoned. There are times when Macedonia proves too much for one—even for me. But you have restored my courage. I feel that tonight I shall surpass myself, and it is necessary—for tonight I entertain Madame Stavros."

"She is a brilliant woman?" suggested Shirley.

"By virtue of being the wife of the Commissioner. I think that Macedonia would agree with you," said Maurois dryly. "It is for me perhaps a little unfortunate that she once spent three days in Paris and has memorized the names of our principal squares and places of public interest."

"Could you yourself sustain a conversation over a period of years on the subject of Central Park and Grant's Tomb? I do not exaggerate. The wind has but to rustle through the trees of my garden and it reminds me the good lady of the Bois de Boulogne. By the way, is it permitted to enquire whether your business with the Commissioner is settled?"

"I have not heard from him," answered Shirley. "But I suppose there has been hardly time."

"Time has little meaning in Macedonia," said Maurois. "And I have never known him do anything from his office. You must meet him socially. I hesitate to expose you to his banalities—to say nothing of those at my house tonight? It will be tedious, but it will undoubtedly advance your business—and possibly I may seize an opportunity to show you my house, of which I am inordinately proud."

"You are very kind, Monsieur, but as my husband is away—"

"Stavros has a profound admiration for the Americans," put in Maurois. "But his knowledge of your countrymen is limited to their money making achievements. It would not strike him as eccentric for you to come without your husband. For myself, I have not the arrogance to beg you to assist me to entertain a couple of cumbersome guests. Only the knowledge that it will undoubtedly facilitate your business with him apologizes to my conscience in asking you."

For an imperceptible second Shirley hesitated. There was, of course, no real reason why Alan's absence should affect her—and here was a chance to advance her work.

"Monsieur Maurois, when you run on like that," she laughed, "you merely convince me that I shall thoroughly enjoy myself."

The car stopped opposite her house and he helped her out.

"I may send my limousine for you?" he asked. "We dine at eight."

Shirley, looking forward to the evening before her, lingered over the task of choosing a dinner. She had left New York prepared for any emergency and had brought many of her clothes with her. She had stored them in the spacious wardrobe of two unused rooms.

It was a matter that required some thought. Her host had mentioned only Stavros and his wife as guests. She did not know the standard of dress adopted by the wife of a Macedonian official and in the end compromised with a simple gown of black silk that she had originally chosen for dining more or less en famille with Roger and Alan in Vermont.

"It's rather fun—dressing again!" she told herself, but beyond this made no admission to herself that she was feeling again something of the old thrill at the prospect of "meeting people." Tonight, too, there was the added zest of knowing that there was much at stake.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"A THOUSAND pardons if I disturb a reverie!" he exclaimed. "Your housekeeper directed me to the garden."

"I'm sorry," laughed Shirley. "I'm afraid I shall not be in the country long enough to train her properly. I wasn't really dreaming, Monsieur Maurois. I was only thinking how nice it would be to fly across this bay, perch on Mount Olympus and then fly back again."

"That could easily be arranged," said Maurois seriously. "But not this morning, I'm afraid. I can, however, offer you a poor substitute. I had called in the hope that you and your husband would let me take you for a run and show you a bit of the country. I had in mind a little jaunt, of a hundred kilometers perhaps, that would enable us to be back before the light fails."

"How perfectly delightful of you!" exclaimed Shirley. "But, unfortunately, Alan left about an hour ago—he's spending two or three days up-country and I am all alone."

"That is in the nature of a catastrophe," said Maurois. "If he had consulted me first I could perhaps have made his journey a little easier. It is a lovely morning. A day to take the air. It emboldens me to repeat my invitation."

"And me to accept it," said Shirley. "Thanks tremendously. Give me five minutes to wrap up."

Five minutes later, wrapped in furs, she was sitting beside him in an open car. In front was a man servant sitting beside the chauffeur, and Shirley wondered whether he were an armed policeman in plain clothes.

The car took them through the suburb of Kalamaria eastwards, and in ten minutes had brought them to open country.

"How beautifully your man drives," said Shirley. "This is the first bit of fresh air I've had for a month or more."

"He is a new man," answered Maurois. "He is not yet fully trained. But he shows promise."

Shirley nodded indifferently. She did not want to talk—wanted merely to lounge back and enjoy the rush through the air. As if he had perceived this Maurois made no further remarks, yet subtly conveyed the impression that he was vastly enjoying himself.

For an hour or more they ran through rambling hills, a fringe of the Balkan range. Then, after a long climb to a grassy plateau, Maurois stopped the car.

"I think we will lunch here," he said. "While my man is getting it ready, let us stroll to the top there and I will show you a pleasing valley."

Shirley admired the valley without effort. She was even enthusiastic, but her enthusiasm was less for the valley than the occasion. She was enjoying herself, enjoying particularly the society of Maurois. It was one thing to turn one's back on the high world, but it was undeniably pleasant to be treated once again as a beautiful woman. Maurois was an ideal companion for a day of idleness.

The lunch she thought a little too elaborate for a picnic, and she refused to drink more than one glass of champagne. She gathered that the second man, so far from being an armed escort, was a domestic servant. When he produced excellently made coffee, served in a dainty coffee cup, Shirley permitted herself to laugh.

"Monsieur Maurois, you asked me to a picnic and you are giving me a banquet."

"He was quick to catch the faint irony of her voice."

"That tells me I have failed," he said gloomily. "It is the tragedy of my race. It is given to us to do many things better than other nations can do them, but they

"Oh, come," answered Shirley. "I've never enjoyed a picnic so much in all my life. Perfect."

"That makes me nervous. Let us hurry away from it, while we both share that illusion."

A few minutes later they had resumed their journey.

"There will be no more speed for the next thirty kilometers or so," said Maurois. "For the road becomes very rough. Nevertheless, you will have the leisure to observe a Balkan village."

As he spoke they turned the bend and passed through a village of twenty or more squat houses, built on a hillside one above the other. Shirley looked for signs of life and found none.

"It's abandoned, isn't it?" she asked.

"No. The women are all inside—from one of the houses you can see smoke. The men are in the hills. This is a Comitatji village—bandits—and I fancy the men are all away on business."

"But—do the authorities know that? Why do they let them—"

"Ah! I was wrong. They are not far away," interrupted Maurois. "Look ahead. You are now going to see an interesting spectacle—the Comitatji at work."

A hundred yards ahead a number of men on horses were galloping from behind a rocky crag, shouting to each other and spreading over the road. Shirley supposed there must have been twenty or thirty of them.

"They see in us a profitable enterprise," Maurois told her. "Are you afraid?"

"I suppose I am a bit," answered Shirley. "But not as much as I ought to be. What will they do to us?"

"You are a brave woman," said Maurois, touching her hand. "They will do nothing to us—as you will see."

The horsemen halted, massed in the middle of the road, barring it. Shots were fired in the air, then four men, brandishing revolvers, rode forward.

As they neared the car, Maurois stood up and addressed them roughly in a language which Shirley did not understand. Instantly the men pocketed their revolvers, and the leader shouted to his followers, who promptly turned about and scattered. The leader dismounted, came to the side of the car and addressed Maurois volubly in apologetic tones. Maurois waved him away and the car continued.

"A little misunderstanding. That fellow was explaining that it was unreasonable of me to expect him to recognize my chauffeur at that distance—especially as I have only had him such a short time."

"They know you, then—the bandits?" asked Shirley.

"Scarcely," he answered. "But as I think I mentioned, I have many interests in Macedonia."

Shirley shrank back into her corner. For a moment she had felt suddenly afraid of Maurois. That quick, intuitive fear of Maurois was gone in a second, leaving behind merely the pleasing tang of adventure. There was adventure in Maurois as well as entertainment. Here was a man who knew a great deal more than he admitted—a rich man who used his money to bring him power over unexpected persons in unexpected places.

For two hours the car made slow progress over rough roads, through bleak, forbidding country whose only charm lay in its wildness. Maurois, gossiping with idle fluency, stopping the car to show her now a battlefield, now a legendary resting place of Saint Paul, kept her interested so that she could feel a pang of regret as they came back through the city.

"I have enjoyed it immensely," she said as they neared Kalamaria.

"I can't tell you how grateful I am."

"Dear lady, today I have lived in the civilization I have abandoned. There are times when Macedonia proves too much for one—even for me. But you have restored my courage. I feel that tonight I shall surpass myself, and it is necessary—for tonight I entertain Madame Stavros."

"She is a brilliant woman?" suggested Shirley.

"By virtue of being the wife of the Commissioner. I think that Macedonia would agree with you," said Maurois dryly. "It is for me perhaps a little unfortunate that she once spent three days in Paris and have memorized the names of our principal squares and places of public interest."

"Could you yourself sustain a conversation over a period of years on the subject of Central Park and Grant's Tomb? I do not exaggerate. The wind has but to rustle through the trees of my garden and it reminds the good lady of the Bois de Boulogne. By the way, is it permitted to enquire whether your business with the Commissioner is settled?"

"I have not heard from him," answered Shirley. "But I suppose there has been hardly time."

"Time has little meaning in Macedonia," said Maurois. "And I have never known him do anything from his office. You must meet him socially. I hesitate to expose you to his banalities—to say nothing of those at my house tonight? It will be tedious, but it will undoubtedly advance your business—and possibly I may seize an opportunity to show you my house, of which I am inordinately proud."

"You are very kind, Monsieur. But as my husband is away—"

"Stavros has a profound admiration for the Americans," put in Maurois. "But his knowledge of your countrymen is limited to their money making achievements. It would not strike him as eccentric for you to come without your husband. For myself, I have not the arrogance to beg you to assist me to entertain a couple of cumbersome guests. Only the knowledge that you will undoubtedly facilitate your business with him apologizes to my conscience in asking you."

For an imperceptible second Shirley hesitated. There was, of course, no real reason why Alan's absence should affect her—and here was a chance to advance her work.

"Monsieur Maurois, when you run on like that," she laughed, "you merely convince me that I shall thoroughly enjoy myself."

The car stopped opposite her house and he helped her out.

"I may send my limousine for you?" he asked. "We dine at eight."

Shirley, looking forward to the evening before her, lingered over the task of choosing a dinner frock. She had left New York prepared for any emergency and had brought many of her clothes with her. She had stored them in the spacious wardrobe of two unused rooms.

It was a matter that required some thought. Her host had mentioned only Stavros and his wife as guests. She did not know the standard of dress adopted by the wife of a Macedonian official and in the end compromised with a simple gown of black silk that she had originally chosen for dining more or less en famille with Roger and Alan in Vermont.

"It's rather fun—dressing again!" she told herself, but beyond this made no admission to herself that she was feeling again something of the old thrill at the prospect of "meeting people." Tonight, too, there was the added zest of knowing that there was much at stake.
